Class of 2008

We the ICOM class of 2008, a diverse set of individuals yet unified as a group, state our commitment to the highest standards of ethics, honesty, integrity, accountability, and professionalism.

We present ourselves with humility and selflessness, treat all people with dignity, and respect their values and beliefs in the absence of personal prejudices.

As future practicing physicians, respectful of our peers, faculty, and patients, we are driven by compassion, tempered by sensitivity, and anchored by our values. We will serve as advocates of our profession and build relationships based on confidentiality and trust.

We commit ourselves to continue our medical education and preparation so that we may best serve our patients and our communities within the rich osteopathic tradition.
